The CLG Program is a local, state, and federal government partnership to enable local communities – towns, cities, municipalities, and counties – to better protect historic resources. Local governments that participate in the program act independently to develop and maintain a successful preservation program. The THC administers the program at the state level and the National Park Service is the responsible federal agency. The CLG Program empowers local preservation efforts by identifying local priorities, meeting recognized historic preservation standards, and providing access to financial and technical services to further the identification, evaluation, designation, and protection of buildings, sites, districts, structures, and objects.
